Article 2

The Ministers, each in his respective capacity, shall implement the provisions of this Code which shall come into force from the date of its publication in the Official Gazette.

Signed: Isa bin Sulman Al Khalifa
Amir of the State of Bahrain

Issued at Rifa'a Palace
On: 19th Rabie Awai 1396 Hijra
Corresponding to 20 March 1976

PENAL CODE

General Provisions

PART I
Application of the Law

Chapter 1
Operation of Law as to Time

Article 1

The law applicable shall be operative at the time of committing the offence. To determine the time thereof reference shall be made to the time of the occurrence of the relevant act, regardless of the time of the realization of its result.

However, if one or more laws have been passed following the commission of the offence and before pronouncing the final judgement, the less onerous of such laws shall be applied against the accused. Furthermore, the more favourable provisions of the law shall apply if exclusion of other provisions is practicable.

If another law is passed after the final judgement so as to provide that the act for which the accused has been convicted is not punishable, the enforcement of the said judgement shall be suspended and thereafter the act shall no longer be a criminal act.

However, if the law mitigates the severity of the penalty, the court passing the final judgement may invoke the provisions of the new law upon an application from the accused or the Public Prosecutor.

Article 2

If a new law is passed for a limited period incriminating a certain act or omission or providing for a harsher penalty, the expiry of such period shall not bar the enforcement thereof upon any offence occurring during such period once criminal proceedings have commenced.

Article 3

Every new law, even if it is harsher, shall be invoked prior to the effective date for every continuing and successive offence and common crime during the period of operation of the said law.

If the aforementioned law has been passed to amend provisions with respect to plurality of offences or the recurrence therefore, due regard shall be made to the offences committed and the convictions passed before the enforcement of the said law.

Article 4

If the law amends the date for implementation, the correct date shall be that which will be less onerous to the accused.

Chapter 2 Application of Law as to Time

Article 5

This Law shall apply to every offence committed within the jurisdiction of the State of Bahrain. The offence shall be deemed to have been committed within its jurisdiction if the act complained of constitutes it or its results were attributed to the said offence or if the intent could be deduced from it.

In every case, the Law shall apply to every person participating in the crime or if his involvement in the crime occurred when he was abroad whether as a perpetrator or a better.

Article 6

This Law shall apply to any citizen or foreigner who has committed outside the State of Bahrain any act which renders him an offender or a guilty partner in one of the crimes affecting the security of the State either at home or abroad, or those offences which are contained in Chapter 1 and 2 of part I of Section 1 or of forging seals and public stamps or counterfeiting currency and bank notes provided for in Article 257, 262 and 263.

Article 7

This Law applies to offences committed abroad by civil servants or persons charged with public duties whether in the exercise of their duties or in their private capacity.

Article 8

Every citizen, whilst abroad, who commits an act that renders him an offender or guilty partner according to this Law shall be punished pursuant to its provisions when he returns to the State of Bahrain even though he is punishable under the law of the country in which he has committed the offence.

The principle of law shall be operative even if the citizen has acquired or lost his nationality after committing the offence.

Article 9

This Law shall apply to every foreigner in Bahrain who may have committed an offence abroad even though such crime is not covered under Articles 6, 7, and 8 of this Law and where application for extradition has so far not been made.

Article 10

Without prejudice to the provisions regarding crimes set forth in Article 6, no criminal proceedings may commence against any person who has already been acquitted by foreign law courts on a criminal charge or has been finally convicted and punished or if the offence has been barred by time.

Article 11

In the event of criminal proceedings being instituted with respect to an offence committed aboard, the judge shall take into consideration in passing a sentence the fact of the accused having undergone punishment, even by way of remand.

Article 12

Due regard shall be given to final judgements passed by foreign criminal courts of law with respect to offences considered as crimes under the terms of this Law and which have been committed aboard as follows:

1. To impose additional punishments so long as they are consistent with the provisions of this Law and to comply with the procedures regarding rights of rebuttal and compensation and other civil remedies.
2. To impose additional punishments so forth in this Law or to decree an order of rebuttal and compensation.
3. To apply the provisions of this Law with regard to recurrence, multiplicity of offences and order of conditional discharge.

In order to invoke a judgement passed by a foreign court, its validity shall be ascertained and it shall be authenticated by the court of competent jurisdiction with regard to the kind of crime in respect of which the judgement has been passed. However, if an action, involving a foreign court judgement is brought, its authentication shall be part of the jurisdiction of the court in which the action is taken up for adjudication.

PART II Criminal Responsibility

Chapter 1 Crimes

Article 13

Crimes are either felonies or misdemeanours.

The nature of the crime shall determine the type of punishment provided for in the Law. Even if the judge substitutes a punishment which has been prescribed for a less serious one on legal grounds or in the exercise of judicial discretion, the nature of the offence may not be altered.

Article 14

Element of intention must necessarily be present in felonies. A misdemeanour may not be classed as intentional if the law expressly provides therefor.

Chapter 2 Plea of Justification

Article 15

Nothing is an offence which is done in fulfilment of a duty required by law.

Article 16

Nothing is an offence which is done in exercise of a right justified by law or custom.

Article 17

The right of self defence commences when the following two factors are present:

1. If the person is in imminent danger of a threat to his own person or property or if he reasonably believes in the imminence of such danger.
2. If there is no time to have recourse to the protection of the public authorities.

In the latter event, the imminent danger threatened against the person or property shall be deemed to have been so even in the case of the person or property of third parties.

Article 18

In the exercise of the right of self-defence, no person may inflict more harm than is necessary for the purpose of defence.

Article 19

If any authorized officer exceeds the limit in the performance of his duties by causing a threat which entitles one to the right of self-defence, the said threat may not be repelled unless the said officer acted in bad faith or if it was reasonably apprehended that the said threat would endanger one.

Article 20

Murder in self-defence or in defence of property shall not be justified except in the following cases:

1. An act from which death or serious injury is feared.
2. An act of rape, assault or attack against personal freedom.
3. An act of setting fire, causing damage or theft.

4. An act of breaking into an inhabited house or appurtenances thereof.

Article 21

Bypassing the extent of a justified act in good faith shall be deemed as an extenuating circumstance.

A judgement for exemption may be passed if the judge finds grounds for such exemption.

Chapter 3 Causation

Article 22

An offender shall not be punished for an offence unless it is the result of his behaviour. If a premeditated offence is committed by way of abstaining from doing what the law or mutual agreement stipulates, an offender shall be punished thereof as though the offence has been committed by his own act.

Article 23

Causal relationship shall not cease even if other causes have contributed with the offender's behaviour in bringing about the result, even if such causes are unknown thereto, and whether they are previous, contemporary or subsequent to his behaviour and whether they are dependent or independent therefrom.

However, such relationship shall cease if an unfamiliar act, that is sufficient in itself to cause the result, interferes following the act of the offender. In this case, the offender shall be punished for what he has actually committed.

Chapter 4 Deliberation and Wrongdoing

Article 24

A person shall not be liable for an offence unless he has committed it deliberately or by his wrongdoing.

Article 25

An offence shall be deliberate if it is committed by an offender being fully aware of its actual reality and legal elements. Also, an offence shall be deemed deliberate if the offender expects a criminal result of his act, which he has taken the risk of committing.

Article 26

An offence shall not be deliberate if the criminal result occurs by reason of the offender's wrongdoing.

Wrongdoing shall be deemed to have taken place whether an offender has anticipated the result of his action or omission and thought that it was possible to avoid such result or had not expected it, although this was within his ability or duty.

Article 27

Deliberation shall be dismissed if the act constituting the offence takes place as a result of a wrongdoing deemed as one of its legal components or, as a result of a circumstance the realization of which shall render the act justified.

This shall not bar the punishment of an offender for the consequences of his act being non-deliberate or any other offence.

Article 28

If an offender is unaware of an aggravating circumstance he shall not be liable therefor unless the law otherwise provides.

He shall take advantage of the grounds preventing a punishment from being imposed as well as justifications in spite of his ignorance thereof.

Article 29

Ignorance of the provisions of this Law is no excuse. However, ignorance of a provision set forth under another law shall be admitted so long as it is applicable to a matter deemed as an element of the crime.

Article 30

For the establishment of deliberation or wrongdoing, no consideration shall be given to the motive or purpose except of remission or increasing the penalty in accordance with provisions of the Law.

Chapter 5 Cases of Non-Liability

Article 31

A person who has unknowingly or without option committed an act constituting a crime shall not be held liable.

Article 32

A person, who is not more than 15 years of age at the time of committing an act constituting a crime, shall not be held liable. In this case, he shall be subject to the provisions of the Juveniles Law.

Article 33

If a person is, the time of committing a crime, lacking in his mental capacity or free will because of an illness, he shall be subject to a mitigating punishment in accordance with the provisions of Articles 71 and 73 or shall be kept in a sanitarium.

Article 34

A person who is not in control of his mental powers at the time of committing a crime, due to intoxication or being under the effect of narcotic drugs which have been given to him by force or unknowingly, shall not be held liable. However, if a crime is committed with his knowledge and choice, he shall be punished as if he has committed the act without being intoxicated or drugged.

Should an offender willfully put himself in such a state of being intoxicated or drugged with the intent of committing the aforesaid offence, this shall be a cause for a severer punishment.

Article 35

No liability shall be proved against any person who has committed an act necessitated by the need to protect himself, others, his property or property of other against an imminent danger, which he has not wilfully caused and it was not in his power to prevent by way of other means, provided that the act is proportionate to the danger sought to be protected against.

A person required by law to counter such danger shall not be deemed to be acting in exigency.

Chapter 6 Attempting to Commit an Offence

Article 36

Attempting to commit an offence is an act by the offender with the intention of causing the commission of such offence, even though it has not been completed. The mere intention to commit an offence or acts in preparation thereof or perpetration thereof shall not be deemed as attempting.

Article 37

Attempting to commit offences shall be punishable by the following penalties, unless the Law otherwise provides:

Life imprisonment, if the sentence for the offence is the death sentence.

Term imprisonment, if the sentence for the offence is life imprisonment.

Article 38

No punishment shall be inflicted in case of attempting to commit a misdemeanour except in the cases provided for in the Law.

Article 39

No punishment shall be inflicted against any person who elects, of his own free will, not to complete an offence he has already attempted unless his act constitutes another punishable crime.

Article 40

If all the acts designed to commit the offence have been completed without achieving the result thereof, an offender shall be subject to the punishment of the intended offence.

However, in this case the judge may apply provisions applicable to attempting. Meanwhile, such provisions shall apply where the offender has, by his will or intervention, prevented the realization of the intended result.

Article 41

Where the commission of an offence that an offender has intended to commit has been made impossible by the inadequacy of the instrument or, absence of the subject-matter, the provisions applicable to attempting thereof shall apply.

Article 42

A punishable attempted offence shall be subject to the sentences involving secondary punishments prescribed for a completed offence, unless the Law otherwise provides.

Chapter 7
Complicity

Article 43

A person who satisfies by his own acts, the requirements of an offence, shall be deemed an offender.

A person who is obliged to commit an offence but is not the principal offender, shall be deemed as an aider.

Persons who, with their joint intent, participate in acts leading to the offence or directly resulting in the commission thereof, shall be deemed as offenders.

Article 44

The following shall be deemed as accomplices:

1. Every person who abets the commission of an offence which occurs as a consequence of such abetting.
2. Every person who agrees with another on the commission of an offence which occurs as a result of such agreement.
3. Every person who knowingly aids the offender in any manner in the commission thereof, making the occurrence thereof possible, due to such aid.

Article 45

Any person involved in an offence, either as a principal offender or an accomplice, shall be liable for the prescribed punishment unless the Law otherwise provides.

Article 46

Where the intention of an accomplice or manner of his knowledge of an offence differs from that of another accomplice or manner of his knowledge thereof, each wrongdoer shall be punished according to his intention or manner of his knowledge.

Article 47

All accomplices shall benefit from extenuating material circumstances even though they were not aware of them. Only the person aware of aggravating circumstances shall be liable thereof.

Article 48

Personal conditions and circumstances shall not have any effect, except in respect of the persons involved whether they disprove, extenuate or aggravate liability or prevent punishment.

PART III
Punishment

Chapter 1
Original Punishment

Article 49

The penalty for a serious crime shall be capital punishment or imprisonment and civil disqualification for a period of at least 3 years and no more than 15 years.

Article 50

The penalty for a misdemeanour shall be imprisonment, a minimum fine of BOS and legal disqualification for no more than 3 years and no less than one year.

Article 51

Every person sentenced to capital punishment shall be executed by a firing-squad. The execution shall not take place without the consent of the Amir.

Article 52

Imprisonment means keeping a convicted person for life or for an adjudged term in a jail intended for this purpose in accordance with the Law.

A term of temporary imprisonment shall not be less than 3 years and shall not be more than 15 years unless the Law otherwise provides.

Article 53

Civil disqualification means depriving a convicted person of all or part of the following rights and benefits:

1. The right to hold a public office or service.
2. The right to be voter or a candidate for public councils.
3. The right to be voter or a candidate for professional or trade associations.
4. The capacity to be a board member of a joint stock company or a manager thereof.
5. The capacity to be an expert.
6. The capacity to be managing-editor or publisher of a newspaper.
7. The capacity to administer a school or an academic institute.
8. The right to carry national or foreign decorations.

Article 54

Imprisonment means the spending by a convicted person the term of the prison sentence in one of the prisons intended for this purpose in accordance with the Law.

A prison sentence shall not be less than 10 days and shall not be more than 3 years unless the law otherwise provides.

Article 55

Every person sentenced to a punishment involving deprivation of liberty, shall perform the hard labour to which he is assigned in prison, in accordance with the Law and in compliance with his circumstances, and with the intent of reforming and qualifying him for self-adaptation in the community.

Article 56

A penalty involving payment of a fine means obliging a convicted person to pay to the State the amount specified in the judgement.

A minimum fine shall be BD1 and the maximum thereof shall be BD1,000 in case of felony and B0500, without prejudice to the limits prescribed by the Law for each offence.

In determining the fine, a judge shall give regard to the financial condition of the convicted person. He shall be empowered to exceed the maximum by no more than double the amount if he deems fit.

Article 57

Where two or more persons have been convicted for one offence, whether as principal offenders or as accomplices, the fine penalties inflicted against each defendant shall be individually pronounced.

Chapter 2 Secondary Punishments

Article 58

A death sentence shall, by the force of Law, have the consequence of invalidating all acts of disposal and management by a convicted person, save for his will.

A guardian shall be appointed to manage the property of the said convicted person and the procedures for his appointment and his terms of reference shall be subject to the provisions applicable to distrainees.

Article 59

A prison sentence shall have the consequence of deprivation of all rights and privileges set forth in Article 53 from the date of such sentence until the final date of inflicting the penalty or elapse thereof for any other reason.

Every act of disposal or management shall, if done by a convicted person during the period of his imprisonment, be illegal.

A guardian shall be appointed to manage the property of the said convicted person, and the procedures for his appointment and his terms of reference shall be subject to the provisions applicable to distrainees.

Article 60

If a convicted person is a civil servant or an officer entrusted with a public service, his deprivation of the right to employment in the civil service shall have the consequence of dismissing him from such service.

Article 61

A judge shall, upon passing a judgement of conviction for a felony, order the deprivation of the convicted person from rights or privileges in excess of the stipulations of Article 53, for a period of at least one year and no more than 10 years, commencing from the date of completing the inflicting of the penalty or elapse thereof for any other reason. If the penalty is a jail term, the adjudged deprivation shall be extended by the period to be spent by the convicted person in jail.

Article 62

Upon passing a judgement against a civil servant for imprisonment for an offence involving an offending civil servant, the judgement may provide for his removal from office for a period of at least one year and no more than 3 years.

Article 63

Where the Law provides, in cases of misdemeanours, for the civil disqualification penalty, a judge shall, in the event of conviction, order the deprivation of the convicted person of any right or privilege set forth under article 53 from the date of the judgement and for a period of no less than one year and no more than 3 years, commencing from the end of executing the penalty or elapse thereof for any other reason, unless otherwise stipulated.

The restrictions contained in the preceding paragraph shall apply to the cases where the Law provides, in cases of misdemeanours, for the dismissal punishment.

Article 64

A judge may, if he hands down a judgement for an offence, order the confiscation of items seized in connection with such offence or items used or in the process of being used for the commission of the offence.

A judgement shall be empowered to confiscate the aforesaid items, the manufacture of which, possession, ownership or use thereof or dealing therein constitutes an offence, even though do not belong to the accused, or if no conviction verdict has been passed in respect of the case.

A judge shall order the confiscation of items intended as a consideration for committing an offence.

The above shall be without prejudice to the rights of bona fide third parties.

Chapter 3 Plurality of Characterizations and Plurality of Offences

Article 65

If more than one characterization applies to an occurrence, recognition shall be given, after recording the said characterizations in the judgement, to the gravest offence for which only the penalty thereof shall be inflicted.

Article 66

Where a person commits two or more offences and if he has not been subject to a final judgement for any of the said offences, the court judgement shall set forth the penalty for each offence, and then a single penalty for all the offences, which penalty shall be for the gravest offence with due regard for aggravating circumstances. Such penalty shall be the punishment to be pronounced and executed to the exclusion of other penalties.

The provisions contained in the foregoing paragraph shall not prejudice the execution of secondary punishments prescribed for any of the penalties set forth in the judgement.

Article 67

If it appears that the convicted person had, before the judgement was handed down, committed a graver offence than the one for which he was convicted, the penalty for such offence shall be inflicted according to the requirements of the foregoing Articles. In this case, the judge shall order in his judgement the extinguishment of what had been executed in the previous judgements.

Chapter 4 Extenuating Justifications and Circumstances

Article 68

Justifications shall either be exempted from punishment or extenuating thereto. No justification shall be admitted except in the cases determined by law.

Article 69

A justification exempting from punishment shall bar a judgement inflicting an original or secondary punishment save for confiscation.

Article 70

Subject to the cases set forth in the Law, extenuating justifications shall be deemed to include the minor age of the accused, who shall be more than fifteen but less than eighteen years age, and committing the offence for honourable motives or objectives or as a consequence of serious provocation by the victim who has no legal right so to do.

Article 71

If there is an extenuating justification for an offence punishable by a death sentence, the penalty shall be reduced to a jail sentence or imprisonment for at least one year. If the penalty for such offence is life or term imprisonment it shall be reduced to the punishment for a misdemeanour unless the law otherwise provides.

Article 72

If an offence is committed under extenuating circumstances and the judge feels the need for clemency, the penalty shall be reduced. If the prescribed penalty is a death sentence, it may be reduced to life or term imprisonment. Further, if the penalty is life imprisonment, it may be reduced to term imprisonment or a jail sentence for a period of less than six months. Where the penalty is a term imprisonment, the judge shall not inflict the maximum penalty but may reduce it to imprisonment for no less than 3 months.

Article 73

If a misdemeanour is committed for a certain justification, the penalty shall be reduced as follows:

If the penalty has a minimum, it shall not be complied with by the judge, in determining the punishment.

If the penalty involves imprisonment and payment of a fine, the judge shall only inflict either.

Article 78

The following shall be deemed as recidivists:

First: A person who has been finally convicted for a felony, and the commits an offence.

Second: A person who has received a final sentence of imprisonment for six months or more, an then commits a misdemeanour before the elapse of five years from the date of the end of this punishment or its forfeiture by way of prescription.

Recidivison shall apply in respect of combined offences in terms of deliberation and omission.

Recidivison shall be deemed as committed an offence under aggravating circumstances.

Article 79

Where a recidivist was previously sentenced to two penalties involving deprivation of liberty for a period of at least one year, or to three penalties involving deprivation of liberty of which one shall be for a period of at least one year or more, the theft, an act of fraud, breach of trust, forgery or concealment of items gained from such crimes, or attempting to commit them, after having been sentenced to the most recent of such penalties for any of the aforesaid misdemeanours, a judge shall inflict imprisonment for a period of no more than five years instead of applying the provisions of the foregoing Article.

Article 80

A judge shall apply the provisions of the foregoing Article to a recidivist who was previously sentenced for committing any of the crimes set forth in Article 410, 411 and 412 to two penalties involving deprivation of liberty, both of which shall be for at least one year, or to three penalties involving deprivation of liberty of which one shall be at least one year or more, then committed, after having been sentenced to the most recent of such penalties, any of the misdemeanours mentioned in the preceding Articles.

Chapter 6 Stay of Execution

Article 80

Upon passing a sentence of a fine or imprisonment for a period of no more than one year, a judge may order a stay of execution if it is established from the accused's conduct, past circumstances of his crime or age that is reason to believe that he will not commit another offence. The judgement shall show the reason for the stay of execution.

A judge shall make a stay of execution inclusive of any secondary punishment, except confiscation.

Article 82

A judge shall, in the event of a stay of execution, oblige the convicted person to pay all or part of the damages to the party affected by the offence within a period to be specified in the judgement.

Article 83

Stay of execution shall be for a period of three years from the date on which the judgement becomes final.

Article 84

A judgement may be passed for revoking a stay of execution in any of the following cases:

First: If the convicted person fails to perform his obligation set forth in Article 82.

Second: If the convicted person commits during the period of probation mentioned in the preceding Article a deliberate offence, he shall be sentenced to a penalty involving deprivation of liberty for more than two months, whether the conviction judgement has been passed during this period or thereafter, provided that the action has been brought during such period.

Third: If it appears during the period of probation the issue of a court order provided for in the foregoing Article but has not been brought to the attention of the court.

A judgement for revocation shall be passed upon an application to be filed by the Public Prosecution with the Court, which has ordered a stay of execution or before which the reason for revocation is established, without prejudice to the degree of litigation.

Article 85

A judgement for revocation shall have the effect of exempting from the penalty which has been subject to a stay of execution.

Article 86

If the period of probation expires without the fulfilment of any of the conditions for revocation of a stay of execution, the judgement shall be null and void.

Chapter 7
Mental and Psychological Illness

Article 87

If the act constituting an offence is committed by a person who is under the effect of a severe state of madness, mental or psychological disorder or impairment rendering him unable to be in full control of his action, a judge shall order that he shall be kept in a sanitarium.

Article 88

The measure provided for in the foregoing Article shall be taken in accordance with the conditions laid down by law in respect of a person who suffers a severe state of insanity, mental or psychological disorder or impairment in the course of the interrogation or after the handing down of the court judgement.

PART IV
Amnesty

Article 89

Total amnesty shall be decided by law and shall have the effect of discontinuing proceedings or nullifying the conviction judgement passed in respect thereof, but it shall have no effect on penalties previously executed.
A total amnesty shall not affect third parties' rights.

Article 90

A special amnesty shall be decided by an Amiri Decree providing for extinguishing all or part of the penalty or replacing it with a less severe penalty.

Such amnesty shall not result in extinguishments of secondary penalties or other effects, unless the amnesty decree otherwise provides.

Article 91

Abolishing a penalty by a special amnesty shall be deemed equal to the execution thereof.

PART V
Provisions Relating to Offences Committed by Methods of Publication

Article 92

In pursuance of the provisions of this Law, the following shall be deemed as methods of publication:

1. Acts, gestures or movements performed or made on a public road, at a public meeting or in an open place that is accessible or kept under the sight of the public if they are performed or made so that they can be seen

- by whoever shall be in such places or if they are communicated thereto by any mechanical device.
2. Verbal statements or slogans if uttered or shouted at any of the aforesaid places, or if uttered or shouted so that they may be heard by persons at such places, or if broadcast by a mechanical device so that they shall be heard by persons not involved in the use of such devices.
 3. Written materials, drawings, pictures, signs, films, and other means of expression if they are displayed at any of the aforesaid places, or if indiscriminately distributed or sold to a number of people, or offered for sale at any place.

Article 93

Without prejudice to criminal liability towards an author or artist, who has prepared a drawing or such other methods of expression, a newspaper's editor-in-chief or editor in charge of a department involved in the publication shall be liable for punishment, unless there is an editor-in-charge regarded as the person responsible for the offences committed by his newspaper. Nevertheless, he shall not be deemed liable, if he has in the course of the preliminary investigation proved that publication has taken place without his knowledge and produced all information documents in his possession to assist in identifying the actual publisher, or to give guidance as to the offender by furnishing all details and papers to prove his liability, or to prove that he has not undertaken publication, otherwise he shall be liable to lose his position in the newspaper or to other serious damages.

Article 94

Where the written material, drawing or other methods of expression used in committing the offence have been published abroad and in all cases where it is not possible to identify the offender, the importers and printers shall be punished as being offenders. Where this is not feasible, the punishment shall be inflicted on the vendors, distributors and persons involved in displaying the relevant materials, unless it appears from the circumstances of the case that they were not in a position to learn the contents of the written materials, drawing or other methods of expression.

Article 95

To avoid criminal liability in respect of the offences committed by way of publication, it shall not be accepted from any person the justification that the written materials, drawings or other methods of expression has/have been copied or translated from any printed matter published in the State or abroad, or that they were merely rumours or stories told by third parties.

Article 96

If a felony or misdemeanour is committed by way of publication, the Public Prosecutor may order the seizure of all written materials, drawings and other methods of expression that have been intended for sale, distribution, display or may have actually been sold, blocks, tapes, films and similar items. In this case, the Public Prosecutor shall immediately refer the matter to the President of the High Civil Court, or whoever stands in for him in the event of his absence, in order to examine the said decision or promptly cancel it. Also, the person concerned may file an application with Court President seeking a verdict in respect of the case.

Upon passing a conviction verdict in respect of the issue of the case, it shall include an order for confiscation the items which have been seized or have been subject to a seizer order in pursuance of the foregoing paragraph.

Article 97

The court shall be empowered to order publication of a summary or full text of the judgement for conviction for an offence committed by any method of publication in one or more newspapers at the expense of the convicted person.

If the offence has been committed by way of publication in a particular newspaper, the court may order at the request of the Public Prosecutor or the aggrieved party the publication of the conviction sentence during a period of time to be determined by the judge in the same position of the newspaper wherein earlier publication took place. If the court order has not been executed, the editor-in-chief or person in charge of publication shall be sentenced to a fine not exceeding B0100. The newspaper may be suspended in accordance with the following article.

Article 98

WITH RESPECT TO AMENDMENTS TO THE PENAL CODE OF 1976

We, Isa bin Salman Al Khalifa, Amir of the State of Bahrain,

Having examined to the Constitution,

And Amiri Order No. 4 of 1975,

And the Penal Code promulgated by Legislative Decree No. 15 of 1976, amended as per Legislative Decree No. 4 of 1982,

And upon the submission of the Minister of Justice and Islamic Affairs,

DO HEREBY ENACT THE FOLLOWING LAW:

Article 1

For the provisions of Article 6, 66, 67, 148, 149, 156, 157, 159, 160, 161, 165, 166, 167, 168 and 171, there shall be substituted the following provisions:

Article 6

The Provisions of this Law shall be applicable to each citizen or alien who has committed outside the State of Bahrain an act, which renders him a perpetrator of or accomplice to any of the offences affecting internal or external state security which are provided for in Chapters I and II of Part I, or to the offence of forging official seals and insignias or forging currencies and banknotes referred to in Articles 257, 262, 263.

Article 66

Where several offences are committed for one purpose only and where they are so closely related, they shall be regarded as a single offence which shall be subject to the harshest penalty.

The provisions of the preceding paragraph shall not affect the enforcement of any other penalty for any related offence.

Article 67

First: Subject to the provisions of Paragraph "Third" of this Article, prison sentences shall be several.

Second: In case the several penalties vary, they shall be enforced in the following order:

- (1) imprisonment
- (2) detention

Third: If any person commits several offences prior to passing a final sentence for any such offences, the period of the prison sentence or temporary detention shall not be more than 20 years provided that the period spent in custody shall not be more than 12 years unless such period is exceeded by a period of imprisonment in respect of another offence in which case the latter sentence shall be enforced to the exclusion of others.

Fourth: Plurality of punishments shall always take place by means of fines.

Article 148

Any person who attempts with the use of force to change or alter the Constitution of the State, its Amiri system, its system of government or to take over the rule of the country shall be punished by life imprisonment.

If the offence takes place as consequence of collaboration with a foreign country or with anyone working in its interest, or if the offence is perpetrated by an armed gang, capital punishment shall be inflicted upon any person who has conspired, collaborated with or formed the gang. The said punishment shall be inflicted on the leader of such gang or upon any person leading its activities

Any person, who attempts with the use of force to occupy any public building used for any Government department or for any of the authorities referred to in the first, fifth and sixth paragraphs of Article 107 shall be liable for life imprisonment.

Where the offence is committed as a result of collaboration with any foreign country or with anyone working in its interest, or if it is committed by an armed gang, capital punishment shall be imposed upon any such person who has collaborated with the said foreign country or has formed the gang, assumed leadership thereof or undertaken any leading role in its activities.

Article 156

Any person who incites others to commit any of the offences set out in Articles 147 to 153 and Paragraph three of Article 155 shall be liable for imprisonment if such incitement does not result in any subsequent effects.

Article 157

Imprisonment for life or for a limited term shall be the punishment for any person who has taken part in any joint action designed at committing any of the offences provided for in Article 147 to 155, or who has used it as a means of achieving a planned objective. Life imprisonment shall be the punishment for any person who incites others to agree upon any joint action, or who influences such moves.

However, if the purpose of the agreement is to commit a certain offence or to use it as a means for attaining a specific objective, for which the punishment is less severe than that set out in the preceding provisions, a penalty harsher than that laid down in the latter offence may not be imposed.

Imprisonment for no more than 5 years shall be the punishment for any person who urges others to be parties to such agreement but receives a negative response. However, if the purpose of the agreement is to commit a specific offence or to use it as a means of attaining the intended purpose for which the penalty is less severe than imprisonment, there may not be imposed any penalty harsher than that laid down for the latter offence

Imprisonment for life or for a limited term shall be the punishment for any person who forms, establishes, organises or operates any society, organisation or branch thereof having as its objects the overthrow or changing the country's political, social or economic system or advocates such action if it is believed that the use of force, intimidation or such other illegal methods are called for.

The same punishment shall be imposed upon persons promoting membership of such organisation.

Any person who joins any society or such association as provided for in the preceding Article, or who takes part therein anyway whatsoever, shall be punished by imprisonment.

Article 160

Imprisonment for a period not exceeding 10 years shall be the punishment for any person who favours or advocates in any manner, whatsoever, the overthrow or change of the country's political, social or economic system with the use of force, intimidation or such other illegal methods.

Article 161

A punishment of imprisonment or a fine shall be imposed upon any person who possesses either by himself or through others any publication or leaflet containing material propagating or promoting any of the things set out in the preceding Article without a lawful cause. The same punishment shall be enforced upon any person who holds any device used for printing, recording or circulation intended, though for a limited period of time, for printing, recording or broadcasting appeals, songs or publicity belonging to any sect, society, association or organisation seeking to achieve any of the purposes referred to in the preceding Article.

Article 165

A prison sentence shall be passed against any person who expressly incites others to develop hatred or hostility towards the system of government..

Article 166

Imprisonment for life shall be the punishment for any person who resorts to violence, intimidation or any other illegal method to force the Amir of the country or the Prime Minister to perform or to abstain from performing any act that lawfully falls within his competence.

Article 167

Imprisonment shall be the punishment for any person who resorts to violence, intimidation or any other illegal method to force any of the Ministers or his deputy to perform or to abstain from performing any acts that lawfully falls within his competence.

Article 168

Imprisonment for a period of no more than two years and a fine not exceeding B0200 or either penalty shall be the punishment for any person who deliberately disseminates false reports, statements or malicious rumours, or produces any publicity seeking to damage public security, terrorise the population or cause damage to the public interest.

The said punishment shall be inflicted upon any person who holds either personally or through others any publication or leaflet containing any of the things set out in the preceding paragraph without a lawful excuse, and upon any person who possesses any device intended for printing, recording or broadcasting and uses it though for a limited period of time, for printing, recording or broadcasting, any of the above.

Article 171

Imprisonment shall be the punishment for any person who overtly incites any of the armed forces or Public Security personnel to desist from being obedient or to abstain from performing their military obligations.

Article 2

The following two Articles 64A and 134A shall be added to the Penal Code of 1976:

Article 64A

Where any alien, whether male or female, is convicted for committing any of the offences set out in this Law, the judge may order to provide in his verdict for deportation thereof from the State of Bahrain indefinitely or for a definite term being no less than 3 years.

Article 134A

A punishment of imprisonment for period of no less than 3 months and a fine of no less than B0100, or either penalty shall be imposed upon any citizen who has attended abroad in whatever capacity and without authorization from the Government, any conference, public meeting or seminar or has participated in any manner whatsoever in the deliberations thereof with the intent of discussing political, social or economic conditions in the State of Bahrain or in any other state so as to weaken financial confidence in the State of Bahrain or undermine its prestige or standing or to worsen political relations between Bahrain and these countries.

The same punishment shall be inflicted upon any person who liaises abroad without any authorisation from the Government with representatives or delegates of any foreign country, association, organisation, society, federation, union or institution with the intent of discussing any of the matters contained in the preceding paragraph.

Article 3

Article 331 of the Penal Code of 1976 shall be annulled.

Article 4

The Ministers, each in his respective capacity, shall implement this Law which shall come into force as from the date of its publication in the Official Gazette.

LAW NO. (16) OF 2010 WITH RESPECT TO AMENDMENT OF ARTICLE
(393) OF THE PENAL CODE PROMULGATED BY LEGISLATIVE DECREE
No. (15) of 1976

We, Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, King of the Kingdom of Bahrain,

Having reviewed the Constitution,

And the Penal Code promulgated by Legislative Decree No. (15) of 1976, as amended,

And the Criminal Procedures Law promulgated by Legislative Decree No. (46) of 2002 amended as per Law No. (41) of 2005,

The Shura Council and Council of Representatives approved the following Law, which we ratify and promulgate:

Article (1):

For the provision of Article (393) of the Penal Code promulgated by Legislative Decree No. (15) of 1976, there shall be substituted the following provision:

A penalty of imprisonment or a fine, or both penalties, shall be inflicted upon anyone who gives mala fide a cheque without having sufficient and disposable credit, who recovers after giving all or some of the consideration so that the balance shall not cover the balance remaining of the amount thereof, who orders the drawee not to cash it or who deliberately make or sign it in a manner preventing the cashing thereof.

The same penalty shall be inflicted upon anyone who endorses in favour of a third party or delivers thereto a cheque while being aware that he does not have a consideration covering the amount thereof or that it cannot be cashed.

If the wrongdoer in the preceding paragraph is intended to cover a usurious loan or repayment of an unlawful debt, this shall be deemed as an aggravating circumstance.

In the case of crimes provided for in this Article, the wrongdoer or his attorney shall be empowered to request the Public Prosecution or the Court, as the case may be and in any condition involved in the case, to legally establish his settlement with the accused by submitting the duly attested settlement statement confirming the payment of the cheque's amount. Such settlement shall bring about the lapse of the criminal case if the said case is being heard before the court or ordering that there is no ground for bringing the legal action if the matter is under investigation before the Public Prosecution. If it is proved that the wrongdoer has paid the cheque's amount following a final judgement against him, the Execution Judge may order stay of execution of the pronounced sentence upon an application from the convicted litigant or his attorney. Such application shall be submitted to the concerned Execution Judge within three days from the date of its submission.

Article (2):

The Prime Minister and the ministers, each in his respective capacity, shall implement this Law which shall come into effect as from the day following the date of its publication in the Official Gazette.
