person
10. Subject to the express provisions of this Code relating to negligent acts and omissions, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission which occurs independently of the exercise of his will, or for an event which occurs by accident.
- Unless the intention to cause a particular result is expressly declared to be an element of the offence constituted, in whole or part, by an act or omission, the result intended to be caused by an act or omission is immaterial.
- Unless otherwise expressly declared, the motive by which a person is induced to do or omit to do an act, or to form an intention, is immaterial so far as regards criminal responsibility.
- Mistake of fact
11. A person who does or omits to do an act under an honest and reasonable, but mistaken, belief in the existence of any state of things is not criminally responsible for the act or omission to any greater extent than if the real state of things had been such as he believed to exist.
- The operation of this rule may be excluded by the express or implied provisions of the law relating to the subject.
- Presumption of sanity
12. Every person is presumed to be of sound mind, and to have been of sound mind at anytime which comes in question, until the contrary is proved.
- insanity
13. A person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission if at the time of doing the act or making the omission he is through any disease affecting his mind incapable of understanding what he is doing, or of knowing that he ought not to do the act or make the omission.

But a person may be criminally responsible for an act or omission although his mind is affected by disease, if such disease does not in fact produce upon his mind one or other of the effects above mentioned in reference to that act or omission.

14.—(1) Save as provided in this section intoxication shall not constitute a defence to any criminal charge.

(2) Intoxication shall be a defence to any criminal charge if by reason thereof the person charged at the time of the act or omission complained of did not know what he was doing and—

- (a) the state of intoxication was caused without his consent by the malicious or negligent act of another person; or
- (b) the person charged was by reason of intoxication insane, temporarily or otherwise, at the time of such act or omission.

(3) Where the defence under the preceding subsection is established, then in a case falling under paragraph (a) thereof the accused shall be discharged and in a case falling under paragraph (b) the provisions of this Code and of the Criminal Procedure Code relating to insanity shall apply.

(4) Intoxication shall be taken into account for the purpose of determining whether the person charged ad formed any intention, specific or otherwise, in the absence of which he would not be guilty of the offence.

(5) For the purpose of this section "intoxication" shall be deemed to include a state produced by narcotics or drugs.

15. A person under the age of seven years is not criminally immature responsible for any act or omission.

A person under the age of twelve years is not criminally responsible for an act or omission, unless it is proved that at the time of doing the act or making the omission he had capacity to know that he ought not to do the act or make the omission.

A male person under the age of twelve years is presumed to be incapable of having carnal knowledge.

16. Save as is expressly provided by this Code, no act or thing judicial done or omitted to be done by a judicial officer shall, if the act or omission was done or omitted bona fide, in the exercise of his no. 2 judicial function, render such judicial officer criminally liable for Sch. such act or omission.

17. A person is not criminally responsible for an offence if it is committed by two or more offenders, and if the act is done or omitted only because during the whole of the time in which it is being done or omitted the person is compelled to do or omit to do the act by threats on the part of the other offender or offenders instantly to kill him or do him grievous bodily harm if he refuses but threats of future injury do not excuse any offence

Compulsion

18. Subject to the provisions of section 18a, a person is not criminally liable to an act done in the exercise of the right to self defence or the defence of another or the defence of property in accordance with the provisions of this Code.

18A —(1) Subject to the provisions of this Code even person has the right—

- (a) to defend himself or any other person against any unlawful act of assault or violence to the body; or
- (b) to defend his own property or any property in this lawful possession, custody or under his care or the property of any other person against any unlawful act of seizure or destruction or violence.

(2) in this section, the expression "property of any other person" includes any property belonging to the Government or a public corporation or an employer or any property communally owned by members of the public as a co-operative society or a village, whether or not that village is registered under the Villages and Ujamaa Villages (Registration, Designation and Administration Act, 1975.

18B. —(1) In exercising the right of self defence or in defence of another or defence of property, a person shall be entitled only to use such reasonable force as may be necessary for that defence.

(2) Every person shall be criminally liable for any offence resulting from excessive force used in self defence or in defence of another or in defence of property.

(3) Any person who causes the death of another as the result of excessive force used in defence, shall be guilty of manslaughter.

18C. —(1) The right of self defence or the defence of another or defence of property shall extend to a person who, in exercising that right, causes death or grievous harm to another and the person so acting, acts in good faith and With an honest belief based on reasonable grounds that his act is necessary for the preservation of his own life or limb or the life or limb of another or of property, in the circumstances where-

- (a) the lawful act is of such a nature as may reasonably cause the apprehension that his own death or the death of another person could be the, consequence of that act; or
- (b) the lawful act is of such a nature as may reasonably cause the apprehension that grievous harm to his own body or the body of another could be the consequence of that unlawful act; or

- (c) the unlawful act is with the intention of committing rape or defilement or an unnatural offence; or
- (d) the unlawful act is with the intention of kidnapping or abducting; or
- (e) the lawful act is burglary or robbery or arson or any offence which endangers life or property.

(2) If, in the exercise of a right of defence in accordance with this Code, the person exercising that right is in such a situation that he cannot effectively exercise that right without risk of harm to an innocent person or property, his right of defence extends to the running of that risk

19. Where any person is charged with a criminal offence arising out of the arrest, or attempted arrest, by him of a person who forcibly resists such arrest or attempts to evade being arrested, the court shall, in considering whether the means used were necessary or the degree of force used was reasonable for the apprehension of such person, have regard to the gravity of the offence which had been, or was being, committed by such person and the circumstances in which such offence had been, or was being, committed by such person.

20. A married woman is not free from criminal responsibility for doing or omitting to do an act merely because the act or omission takes place in the presence of her husband; but on a charge against a wife for any offence other than treason or murder, it shall be a good defence to prove that the offence was committed in the presence of, and under the coercion of the husband.

21. A person shall not be punished twice, either under the provisions of this Code or under the provisions of any other law to be

CHAPTER V Parties to Offences

22. When an offence is committed, each of the following persons is deemed to have taken part in committing the offence and to be guilty of the offence, and may be charged with actually committing it, that is to say—

- (a) every person who actually does the act or makes the omission which constitutes the offence;
- (b) every person who does or omits to do any act for; the purpose of enabling or aiding another person, to commit the offence:

- (c) every person who aids or abets another person in committing the offence;
- (d) any person who counsels or procures any other person to commit the offence.

In the last mentioned case he may be charged either with committing the offence or with counselling or procuring its commission.

A conviction of counselling or procuring the commission of an offence entails the same consequences in all respects as a conviction of committing the offence.

Any person who procures another to do or omit to do any act of such a nature that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission, the act or omission would have constituted an offence on his part, is guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment, as if he had himself done the act or made the omission; and he may be charged with the act or making the omission.

23. When two or more persons form a common intention to prosecute an unlawful purpose in conjunction with one another, and in the prosecution of such purpose an offence is committed of such a nature that its commission was a probable consequence of the prosecution of such purpose each of them is deemed to have committed the offence.

24. When a person counsels another to commit an offence, and an offence is actually committed after such counsel by the person to whom it is given, it is immaterial whether the offence actually committed is the same as that counselled or a different one, or whether the offence is committed in the way counselled or in a different way, provided in either case that the facts constituting the offence actually committed are a probable consequence of carrying out the counsel.

In either case the person who gave the counsel is deemed to have counselled the other person to commit the offence actually committed by him.

CHAPTER VI Punishments

- Different kinds of punishments (1) Death.
(2) Imprisonment.
(3) Corporal punishment.
25. The following punishments may be inflicted by a court:—

- (4) Fine.
- (5) Forfeiture.
- (6) Payment of compensation.
- (7) Finding security to keep the peace and be of good behaviour, or to come up for judgment.
- (8) Any other punishment provided by this Code or by any other law or Ordinance.

26.—(1) When any person is sentenced to death, the sentence shall direct that he shall suffer death by hanging.

(2) Sentence of death shall not be pronounced on or recorded against any person who, in the opinion of the court, is under eighteen years of age, but in-lieu thereof the court shall sentence such person to be detained during the President's pleasure, and if so sentenced he shall be liable to be detained in such place and under such conditions as the Minister for the time being responsible for legal affairs may direct, and whilst so detained shall be deemed to be in legal custody.

(3) When a person has been sentenced to be detained during the President's pleasure under the last preceding subsection, the presiding judge shall forward to the Minister for the time being responsible for legal affairs a copy of the notes of evidence taken at the trial, with a report in writing signed by him containing such recommendation or observations on the case as he may think fit to make.

27.—(1) [Omitted by virtue of s.3 of Cap. 357].

(2) A person liable to imprisonment for life or any other period may be sentenced for any shorter term,

(3) A person liable to imprisonment may be sentenced to pay a fine in addition to, or instead of, imprisonment.

28. Subject to the provisions of the Minimum Sentences Act, 1963, where in this Code it is provided that any person shall be liable to undergo corporal punishment, such punishment shall, if awarded, be inflicted in accordance with the provisions of the Corporal Punishment Ordinance.

29. Where a fine is imposed under any law, then in the absence of express provisions relating to such fine in such law the following provisions shall apply:—

- (i) Where no sum is expressed to which the fine may, extend the amount of the fine which may be imposed is unlimited, but shall not be excessive,
- (ii) In the case of an offence punishable with a fine or term of imprisonment the imposition of a fine or a term of imprisonment shall be a matter for the discretion of the court.

(in) In the case of offence punishable with imprisonment as well as a fine in which the offender is sentenced to a fine with or without imprisonment and in every case of an offence punishable with fine only in which the offender is sentenced to a fine, the court passing sentence may, in its discretion—

- (a) direct by its sentence that in default of payment of the fine the offender shall suffer imprisonment for a certain term, which imprisonment shall be in addition to any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced or to which he may be liable under a commutation of sentence; and also
- (b) issue a warrant for the levy of the amount on the immovable and movable property of the offender by distress and sale under warrant:

Provided that if the sentence directs that in default of payment of the fine the offender shall be imprisoned, and if such offender has undergone the whole of such imprisonment in default, no court shall issue a distress warrant unless for special reasons to be recorded in writing considers it necessary to do so.

(iv) The term of imprisonment ordered by a court in respect, of the non-payment of any sum of money adjudged to be paid by a conviction or in respect of the default of a sufficient distress to satisfy any such sum shall be such term in the opinion of the court will satisfy the justice of the case, but shall not exceed in any case the maximum fixed by the following scale:—

Not exceeding Shs. 50	14 days.
Exceeding Shs. 50/-but not exceeding Shs. 200/-	2 months.
Exceeding Shs. 200/- but not exceeding Shs. 2.000/-	6 months.
Exceeding Shs. 2,000/r but not exceeding Shs. 10.000/-	12 months.
Exceeding Shs. 10,000/-	24 months.

(v) The imprisonment which is imposed in default of payment of a fine shall terminate whenever the-fine is either paid or levied by process of law.

30. When any person is convicted of an offence under section 11J or 112, the court may, in addition to or in lieu of, any penalty which may be imposed, order the forfeiture to the Republic of any property which has passed in connection with the commission of the offence, or, if such property cannot be forfeited or cannot be found, of such sum as the court shall assess as the value of the property. Payment of any sum so ordered to be forfeited may be enforced in the same manner and subject to the same incidents as in the case of the payment of the fine.

31. In accordance with the provisions of section 176 of the Criminal Procedure Code, any person who is convicted of an offence may be adjudged to make compensation to any person injured by his offence. Any such compensation may be either in addition to or in substitution for any other punishment.

32. Subject to the Limitations imposed by section 173 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a court may order any person convicted of an offence to pay the costs of and incidental to the prosecution or any part thereof.

33. A person convicted of an offence not punishable with death may, instead of, or in addition to, any punishment to which he is liable, be ordered to enter into his own recognizance, with or without sureties, in such amount as the court thinks fit, conditioned, that he shall keep the peace and be of good behaviour for a time to be fixed by the court, and may be ordered to be imprisoned until such recognizance, with sureties, if so directed, is entered into; but so that the imprisonment for not entering into the recognizance shall not extend for a term longer than one year, and shall not, together with the fixed term of imprisonment, if any, extend for a term longer than the longest term for which he might be sentenced to be imprisoned without fine.

34. [Repealed: Ordinance 1961.No. 5, s. 2].

35. When in this Code no punishment is specially provided for any misdemeanor, it shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or with a fine or with both.

36. Where a person after conviction for an offence is convicted of another offence, either before sentence is passed upon him under the first conviction or before the expiration of that sentence, any sentence, other than, a sentence of death or of corporal punishment, which is passed upon him under the subsequent conviction shall be executed after the expiration of the former sentence, unless the court directs that it shall be executed concurrently with the former sentence or of any part thereof:

Provided that it shall not be lawful for court to direct that a sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of a fine shall be executed concurrently with a former sentence under section 29 (iii) (a) or with any part of such a sentence.

37.—(1) When sentence is passed under this Code on an escaped convict, such sentence, if of death, fine or corporal punishment, shall, subject to the provisions' of this Code take effect immediately, and if of imprisonment, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say—

- (a) if the new sentence is severer than the sentence which the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately and he shall serve any period of imprisonment in respect of his former sentence which remained unexpired at the time of his escape after he has completed serving his new sentence;
 - (b) when the new sentence is not severer than the sentence the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment for a further period equal to that part of his former sentence which remained unexpired at the time of his escape.
- (2) [Omitted by virtue of s. 3 of Cap. 357].

38.—(1) Where a court by or before which a person is convicted of an offence is of opinion, having regard to the circumstances including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, that it is inexpedient to inflict punishment and that a probation order is not appropriate, the court may make an order discharging him absolutely or, if the court thinks fit, discharging him subject to the condition that he commits no offence during such period, not exceeding twelve months from the date of the order, as may be specified therein.

(2) An order discharging a person subject to the condition referred to in subsection (1) is hereinafter referred to as "an order for conditional discharge" and the period specified in any such order as "the period of conditional discharge".

(3) Before making an order for conditional discharge the court shall explain to the offender in ordinary language that if he commits another offence during the period of conditional discharge he will be liable to be sentenced for the original offence.

(4) Where an order discharging an offender is made under this section the court may order him to pay any compensation adjudged under section 1 or any costs ordered under section 32 of the Code.

38A.—(1) If it appears to a Judge or any magistrate that a person in respect of whom an order for conditional discharge has been made has been convicted of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, he may issue a summons requiring that person to appear at the place and time specified therein or may issue a warrant for his arrest:

Provided that a magistrate shall not issue such a summons or such a warrant except on information in writing and on oath.

(2) A summons or warrant issued under this section shall direct the person so convicted to appear or to be brought before the court by which the order for conditional discharge was made.

(3) Where a person in respect of whom an order for conditional discharge has been made is convicted by a magistrate of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the magistrate may commit him to custody or release him on bail, with or without sureties, until he can be brought or appear before the court by which the order for conditional discharge was made.

(4) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the court by which the order for conditional discharge was made that the person in respect of whom the order was made has been convicted of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the court may pass any sentence upon him which it could pass if he had just been convicted by that court of the original offence.

(5) Where a person in respect of whom an order for conditional discharge has been made by a magistrate is convicted by the High Court of an offence committed during the period of conditional discharge, the High Court may pass any sentence upon him which the court which made the order for conditional discharge could pass if he had just been convicted by that court of the original offence.

(6) Where under the provisions of this section a person who has been conditionally discharged is sentenced for the offence in respect of which the order for conditional discharge was made, that order shall cease to have effect.

38B.—(1) Subject to the provisions of subsection (2), where a person is convicted of an offence and discharged either absolutely or conditionally under the provisions of section 38, his conviction discharge for that offence shall be deemed not to be a conviction for any purpose other than the purposes of the proceedings in which the order is made and of any subsequent proceedings which may be taken against him under the provisions of section 38A:

Provided that where a person who has been conditionally discharged is subsequently sentenced under section 38A for the offence in respect of which the order for conditional discharge was made, this section shall cease to apply in respect of that offence and he shall be deemed to have been convicted on the date of such sentence.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect—

- (a) the right of any person who has been convicted and discharged either absolutely or conditionally to appeal against his conviction or to rely thereon in bar of any subsequent proceedings for the same offence; Or
- (b) the revesting or restoration, of any property in consequence of the conviction of any such person.

162. No prosecution for an offence under sections 158 or 160 of this Code shall be commenced without the sanction of the Director Prosecutions of Public Prosecutions.

CHAPTER XVI

Offences Relating to Marriage and Domestic Obligations

163. Any person who willfully and by fraud causes any woman who is not lawfully married to him to believe that she is lawfully married to him and to cohabit or have sexual intercourse with him in that belief is guilty of a felony, and is liable to imprisonment for ten years.

164. [Repealed: Act 1971 No, 5, s. 166(2)].

165. Any person who dishonestly or with a fraudulent intention goes through the ceremony of marriage, knowing that he is not thereby lawfully married, is guilty of a felony, and is liable to imprisonment for five years.

166. Any person who being the parent, guardian or other person having the lawful care, or charge, of a child under the age of fourteen years, and being able to maintain such child, willfully and without lawful or reasonable cause deserts the child and leaves it without means of support, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

167. Any person who, being the parent or guardian or other person having the lawful care or charge of any child of tender years and unable to provide for itself, refuses or neglects to provide (being able to do so) sufficient food, clothes, bedding and other necessaries for such child, so as thereby to injure the health of such child, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

168. - (4) every person found in or upon or near any premises or in any road or highway or any place adjacent thereto or in any public place at such time and under such circumstances as to lead to the conclusion that such person is therefore an illegal or disorderly purpose;
- (5) every person who, without the prior consent in writing in that behalf of the Area Commissioner, or, in the case of any municipality or township; the police officer in charge of the police in such municipality or township, collects, or makes any appeal for subscriptions of money in any public place in such district, municipality or township, for any purpose, shall be deemed to be a rogue and vagabond, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable for the first offence to imprisonment for three months, and for every subsequent offence to imprisonment for one year;

Provided that paragraph (5) of this section shall not apply to—

- (a) any person who, or the duly authorized representative of any organization which, has received the written consent of the *Inspector-General of Police to collect, or make any appeal for, subscription of money for religious or charitable purposes; or
- (b) any person authorized to collect, or make any appeal for, subscriptions of money under the provisions of any law, including any by-law, in force in Tanganyika:

Provided further that for the purposes of paragraph (5) of this section, the definition "public place" in section 5 of this Code shall not be deemed to include any recognized place of religions work-ship.

177 A. Subject to the provisions of any other law, including any by-law, any person, whether or not he has received any written consent referred to in the first proviso to section 177, or has been authorized as in paragraph (a) or (b) of the said first proviso, who, having collected or procured to be collected money by subscription in Tanganyika or any part thereof, fails, if and when required so to an Area Commissioner, or, in the case of any municipality or township, by the police officer in charge of the police in such municipality or township, either to produce to such Area Commissioner or police officer, or to publish in a newspaper designated by such Area Commissioner or police officer, as he may be required, full and correct accounts of any money received by such subscriptions and of the disposal thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable for the first offence to imprisonment for two years and for every subsequent offence, to imprisonment for three years.

178.—(1) Any person who, not being a person serving in the Armed Forces of the United Republic or in any police force established by law, wears without the permission of the President the uniform of any of those forces or any dress having the appearance or bearing any of the regimental or other distinctive marks .of such uniform is guilty of misdemeanour, and is liable to imprisonment for one month or to a fine of two hundred shillings:

*Inspector-General of Police: G N. 19[^] No 73.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent any person from wearing any uniform or dress in the course of a stage play performed in any place in which stage plays may lawfully be publicly performed, or in the course of a music-hall or circus performance, or in the course of any bona fide military representation.

(2) Any person who unlawfully wears the uniform of any of the forces aforesaid, or any dress having the appearance or bearing any of the regimental or other distinctive marks of any such uniform, in such a manner or in such circumstances as to be likely to bring contempt on that uniform, or employs any other person so to wear such uniform or dress, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and is liable to imprisonment for three months or to a fine of four hundred shillings.

(3) Any person who, not being in the service of the United Republic of having previously received the written permission of the Inspector-General of Police so to do, imports or sells or has in his possession for sale any such uniform as aforesaid, or the buttons or badges appropriate thereto, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and is liable to imprisonment for six months or to a fine of two thousand shillings.

(4) When any person shall have been convicted of any offence under this section, the uniform, dress, button, badge or other thing in respect of which the offence has been committed shall be forfeited unless the President shall otherwise order.

179. Any person who unlawfully or negligently does any act which is, and which he knows or has reason to believe to be likely to spread the infection of any disease dangerous to life, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

180. Any person who adulterates any article of food or drink, so as to make such article noxious as food or drink, intending to sell or drink such article as food or drink, knowing it to be likely that the same intended for sale will be sold as food or drink, is, guilty of a misdemeanour.

181. Any person who sells, or offers or exposes for sale, as food or drink, any article which has been rendered or has become noxious, or is in a state unfit for food or drink', knowing or having reason to believe that the same is noxious as food or drink, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

182. Any person who adulterates any drug or medical preparation in such a manner as to lessen the efficacy or change the operation of such drug or medical preparation, or to make it noxious, intending that it shall be sold or used for any medicinal purpose, as if it had not undergone such adulteration, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

183. Any person who, knowing any drug or medical preparation to have been adulterated in such a manner as to lessen its efficacy, to change its operation, or to render it noxious, sells the same, or offers or exposes it for sale, or issues it from any dispensary for medicinal purposes as unadulterated, or causes it to be used for medicinal purposes by any person not knowing of the adulteration, is guilty of a misdemeanour

184. Any person who voluntarily corrupts or fouls the water of any public spring or reservoir, so as to render it less fit for the purpose for which it is ordinarily used, is guilty of a misdemeanour.

Fouling air 185. Any person who voluntarily vitiates the atmosphere in any place so as to make it noxious to the health of persons in general dwelling or carrying on business in the neighbourhood or passing along a public way, is guilty of a misdemeanour:

Offensive trades 186. Any person who, for the purposes of trade or otherwise, makes loud noises or offensive unwholesome smells in such places and circumstances as to annoy any considerable number of persons in the exercise of their common rights, commits an offence and is liable to be punished as for a common nuisance.

Division IV.—Offences Against the Person

CHAPTER XIXA

Murder and Manslaughter

Manslaughter- 195. Any person who by an unlawful act or omission causes the death of another person is guilty of the felony termed "manslaughter" An unlawful omission is an omission amounting to culpable negligence to discharge a duty tending to the preservation of life or health, whether such omission is or is not accompanied by an intention to cause death or bodily harm.

Murder 196. Any person who of malice aforethought causes the death of another person by an unlawful act or omission is guilty of murder.

Punishment of murder 197. Any person convicted of murder shall be sentenced to death:

*Note.—For offences relating to Defamation formerly under ss 187—194 see under the Newspapers Act No. 3 of 1976.

Provided that, if a woman convicted of an offence punishable with death is alleged to be pregnant, the court shall inquire into the fact and, if it is proved to the satisfaction of such court that she is pregnant the sentence to be passed on her shall be a sentence of imprisonment for life instead of a sentence of death.

Punishment of manslaughter Conviction for infanticide in certain cases

198. Any person who commits the felony of manslaughter is liable to imprisonment for life.

199. Where a woman by any wilful act or omission causes the death of her child, being a child under the age of twelve months, but at the time of the act or omission she had not fully recovered from the effect of giving birth to such child, and by reason thereof or by reason of the effect of lactation consequent upon the birth of her child the balance of her mind was then disturbed, she shall, notwithstanding that the circumstances were such that but for this section-the offence would have amounted to murder, be guilty of the felony termed "infanticide", and may for such offence be dealt with and punished as if she had been guilty of the offence of manslaughter of such child.

Malice aforethought

200. Malice aforethought shall be deemed to be established by evidence proving any one or more of the following circumstances—

- (a) an intention to cause the death of, or to do grievous harm to any person, whether such person is the person actually killed or not;
- (b) knowledge that the act or omission causing death will probably cause the death of or grievous harm to some person, whether ' such person is the person actually killed or not, although such knowledge is accompanied by indifference whether death or grievous bodily harm is caused or not, or by a wish that it may not be caused;
- (c) an intent to commit a felony;
- (d) an intention by the act or omission to facilitate the flight or escape from custody of any person who has committed or attempted to commit a felony.

Killing on provocation

201. When a person who unlawfully kills another under circumstances which, but for the provisions of this section would constitute murder, does the act which causes death in the heat of passion caused by sudden provocation as hereinafter defined, and before there is time for his passion to cool, he is guilty of manslaughter only.

Provocation defined Ord. 1946 No. 16 s. 2

202. The term "provocation" means and includes, except as hereinafter stated, any wrongful act or insult of such a nature as to be likely, when done to an ordinary person, or in the presence of an ordinary person to another person who is under his immediate care, or to whom he stands in a conjugal, parental, filial or fraternal relation, or in the relation of master or servant, to deprive him of the power of self-control and to induce him to commit an assault of the kind which the person charged committed upon the person by whom the act or insult is done or offered.

When such an act or insult is done or offered by one person to another, or in the presence of another to a person who is under the immediate care of that other, or to whom the latter stands in any such relation as aforesaid, the former is said to give the latter provocation for an assault.

A lawful act is not provocation to any person for an assault.

An act which a person does in consequence of incitement given by another person in order to induce him to do the act and thereby to furnish an excuse for committing an assault is not provocation that other person for an assault.

An arrest which is unlawful is not necessarily provocative for an assault, but it may be evidence of provocation to a person who knows of the illegality.

For the purposes of this section the expression "an ordinary person" shall mean an ordinary person of the community to which the accused belongs.

Causing death
defined

203. A person is deemed to have caused the death of another person although his act is not the immediate or sole cause of death in any of the following cases—

- (a) if he inflicts bodily injury on another person in consequence of which that other person undergoes, surgical or medical treatment which causes death. In this case it is immaterial whether the treatment was proper or mistaken, if it was employed in good faith and with common knowledge and skill; but the person inflicting the injury is not deemed to have caused the death if the treatment which was its immediate cause was not employed in good faith or was so employed without common knowledge or skill;
- (b) if he inflicts bodily injury on another which would not have caused death if the injured person had submitted to proper surgical or medical treatment or had observed proper precautions as to his mode of living;
- (c) if by actual or threatened violence he causes that other person to perform an act which causes the death of that person, such act being a means of avoiding such violence which in the circumstances would appear natural to the person whose death is so caused;
- (d) if by any act or omission he hastens the death of a person suffering under any disease or injury which apart from such act or omission would have caused death;

(e) if his act omission would not have caused death unless it had been accompanied by an actor omission of the person killed or of other person.

204. A child becomes a person capable of being killed, when it has completely proceeded in a living state from the body of its mother, whether it has breathed or not, and whether it has an independent circulation or not, and whether the navel-string is severed or not.

205. A person is not deemed to have killed another if the death of that person does not take place within a year and a day of the cause of death.

Such period is reckoned inclusive of the day on which the last unlawful act contributing to the cause of death was done.

When the cause of death is an omission to observe or perform a duty, the period is reckoned inclusive of the day on which the omission, ceased.

When the cause of death is in part an unlawful act, and in part an omission to observe or perform a duty, the period is reckoned inclusive of the day on which the last unlawful act was done of the day on which the omission ceased, whichever is the later.

CHAPTER XX

Division V.—Offences Relating to Property

CHAPTER XXVI

Theft

257. Every inanimate thing whatever which is the property of any person, and which is movable, is capable of being stolen.

Every inanimate thing which is the property of any person, and which is capable of being made movable, is capable of being stolen as soon as it becomes movable, although it is made movable in order to steal it.

Thing
of being stolen

Every tame animal, whether tame by nature or wild by nature and tamed, which is the property of any person, is capable of being stolen.

Animals wild by nature, of a kind which is not ordinarily found in a condition of natural liberty in Tanganyika, which are the property of any person, and which are usually kept in a state of confinement, are capable of being stolen, whether they are actually in confinement or have escaped from confinement.

Animals wild by nature, of a kind which is not ordinarily found in a condition of natural liberty in Tanganyika, which are the property of any person, are capable of being stolen while they are in confinement and while they are being actually pursued after escaping from confinement, but not at any other time.

An animal wild by nature is deemed to be in a state of confinement so long as it is in a den, cage, sty, tank or other small enclosure, or is otherwise so placed that it cannot escape, and that its owner can take possession of it at pleasure.

Wild animals in the enjoyment of their natural liberty are not capable of being stolen, but their dead bodies are capable of being stolen.

Everything produced by or forming part of the body of an animal capable of being stolen is capable of being stolen.

258.—(1) A person who fraudulently and without claim of right takes anything capable of being stolen, or fraudulently converts to the use of any person other than the general or special owner thereof anything capable of being stolen, is said to steal that thing.

(2) A person who takes or converts anything capable of being stolen is deemed to do so fraudulently if he does so with any of the following intents, that is to say—

- (a) an intent permanently to deprive the general or special owner of the thing of it;
- (b) an intent to use the thing as a pledge or security;
- (c) an intent to part with it on a condition as to its return which the person taking or converting it may be unable to perform;
- (d) an intent to deal with it in such a manner that it cannot be returned in the condition in which it was at the time of the taking or conversion;
- (e) in the case of money, an intent to use it at the will of the person who takes or converts it, although he may intend afterwards to repay the amount to the owner.

The term "special owner" means any person who has lawful possession or custody of, or any proprietary interest in, the thing in question.

(3) When a thing stolen is converted, it is immaterial whether it is taken for the purpose of conversion, or whether it is at the time of the conversion in the possession of the person who converts it. It is also immaterial that the person who converts the thing in question is the holder of a power of attorney for the disposition of it, or is otherwise authorized to dispose of it.

(4) When a thing converted has been lost by the owner and found by the person who converts it, the conversion is not deemed to be fraudulent if at the time of the conversion the person taking or converting the thing does not know who is the owner, and believes on reasonable grounds that the owner cannot be discovered.

(5) A person shall not be deemed to take a thing unless he moves the thing or causes it to move.

259.—(1) When a factor or agent pledges or gives a lien on any goods or document of title to goods entrusted to him for the purpose of sale or otherwise for any sum of money not greater than the amount due to him from his principal at the time of pledging or giving the lien, together with the amount of any bill of exchange or promissory note accepted or made by him for or on account of his principal, such dealing with the goods or document of title is not deemed to be theft.

(2) When a servant, contrary to his master's orders, takes from his possession any food in order that it may be given to an animal belonging to or in the possession of his master, such taking is not deemed to be theft.

260. When a person receives, either alone or jointly with another person, any money or valuable security or a power of attorney for the sale, mortgage, pledge or other disposition of any property, whether capable of being stolen or not, with a direction in either case that such money or any part thereof, or any other money received in exchange for it, or any part thereof, or the proceeds or any part of the proceeds of such security, or of such mortgage, pledge or other* disposition, shall be applied to any purpose or paid to any person, specified in the direction, such money and proceeds are deemed to be the property of the person from whom the money, security, or power, of attorney was received until the direction has been complied with.

261. When a person receives, either alone or jointly with another person, any property from another on terms authorizing or requiring him to sell it or otherwise dispose of it, and requiring him to pay or account for the proceeds of the property, or any part of such proceeds, or to deliver anything received in exchange for the property, to the person from whom it is received, or some other person, then the proceeds of the property, and anything so received in exchange for it, are deemed to be the property of the person from whom the property was so received, until they have been disposed of in accordance with the terms on which the property was received, unless it is a part of those terms that the proceeds, if any, shall form an item in a debtor and creditor account between him and the person to who he is to pay them or account for them and that the relation of debtor and creditor only shall exist between them in respect hereof.

received for another

262. When a person receives, either alone or jointly with another person, any money on behalf of another, the money is deemed to be the property of the person on whose behalf it is received, unless the money is received on the terms that it shall form an item in a debtor and creditor account, and that the relation of debtor and creditor only shall exist between the parties in respect of it.

Theft by persons having an

Division VII.—Forgery, Coining, Counterfeiting and Similar Offences

CHAPTER XXXIV

Definitions

333. Forgery is the making of a false document with intent to defraud or to deceive.

Document 334. The term "document" in this division of this Code does not include a trade mark or any other sign used in connection with articles of commerce though they may be written or printed.

335. Any person makes a false document who—

- (a) makes a document which is false or which he has reason to believe is untrue;

- (b) alters a document without authority in such a manner that if the alteration had been authorized it would have altered the effect of the document;
- (c) introduces into a document without authority whilst it is being drawn up matter which if it had been authorized would have altered the effect of the document;
- (d) signs a document—
 - (i) in the name of any person without his authority whether such name is or is not the same as that of the person signing;
 - (ii) in the name of any fictitious person alleged to exist whether the fictitious person is or is not alleged to be of the same name as the person signing;
 - (iii) in the name represented as being the name of a different person from that of the person signing it and intended to be mistaken for the name of that person;
 - (iv) in the name of a person personated by the person signing the document, provided that the effect of the instrument depends upon the identity between the person signing the document and the person whom he professes to be.

336. An intent to defraud is presumed to exist if it appears that at the time when the false document was made there was in existence a specific person ascertained or unascertained capable of being defrauded thereby, and this presumption is not rebutted by proof that the offender took or intended to take measures to prevent such person from being defrauded in fact, nor by the fact that he had or thought he had a right to the thing to be obtained by the false document.

CHAPTER XXXV

CHAPTER 16

PENAL CODE

RULES

Under section 128

THE PENAL CODE (ANATOMY) RULES, 1963

1. These Rules may be cited as the Penal Code (Anatomy) No. 192 Rules, 1963.
2. In these Rules, unless the context otherwise requires—"coroner" has the meaning ascribed thereto in the Inquests Ordinance; Cap. 24.
"interment" includes any method of disposal of dead bodies which is customary in any community;
"medical officer" in relation to a hospital means the medical officer in charge of that hospital;
"Minister" means the Minister for the time being responsible for matters relating" to health.
3. Where a person has died in a hospital, the medical officer, if he is of opinion that it is necessary to ascertain the cause of death or that it will assist the advancement of medical science, may authorize a postmortem examination of the body of such person:

Provided that no such examination shall be authorized in any case where the surviving wife or husband or any other relative of the deceased requires the body of the deceased to be interred without such examination.
4. Where a person has died in hospital and his body has not been claimed by a relative or a bona fide friend within twenty-four hours of his death, the medical officer may cause the body of such person to be delivered to a medical school, but shall forth with inform a coroner of the date of the person's death, of such particulars as are known of his identity and of the date on which the body was delivered to a named medical, school.

5. Where a medical officer has caused a body to be delivered to a medical school under rule 4, such body shall thereupon be preserved but nothing further shall be done to it for a period of not less than fourteen days, or in the event of a claim being made by any person for the body, until such time as there has been final adjudication on the claim.

6.—(1) If within fourteen days of the delivery of a body to a medical school it is claimed by any person who satisfies a coroner or the medical officer that he is a relative, a bona fide friend, or an authorized representative of the community to which the deceased person belonged, the coroner or medical officer shall cause such body to be delivered to the person claiming it.

(2) As soon as it comes to the notice of a medical officer or of a coroner that a body which has been delivered to a medical school has been claimed by any person he shall immediately inform the medical school to which the body has been delivered.

7. If at the expiration of the period of fourteen days no person has claimed the body of the deceased person under the provisions of rule 6, any professor or teacher of anatomy, pathology, medicine or surgery or any student working under the supervision of any such professor or teacher may dissect such body.

8. Where a professor or teacher of anatomy, pathology, medicine or surgery considers it necessary for the instruction of student or for research at a medical school, he may authorize the retention of any part of a body removed to such school under these Rules.

9. Subject to the provisions of rule 8, every body removed to a medical school shall after dissection be decently interred and a certificate of the interment of such body shall be sent to a coroner.

10.—(1) The Medical Officer in charge of any hospital may, if satisfied the tissue is required in the treatment of any other person, remove or authorize the removal of any cadaveric tissue from a body lying in the hospital:

Provided that if a spouse, a parent or a guardian of the deceased is readily available no such removal shall take place without the consent of that spouse, parent or guardian.

[Subsidiary]

(2) For the purpose of this Rule the words "readily available" shall mean available within such time as would enable the removal of the tissue to take place whilst it is still in a condition to be utilized for the purpose for which it is required.

11. Any person authorized in writing by the Minister may visit and inspect at any reasonable time any medical school and may require the production of full and correct records relating to the removal, dissection and interment of bodies which have been removed to such medical school in accordance with the provisions of these Rules.
